

BRAQUE SAINT GERMAIN

Official UKC Breed Standard

Revised July 1, 2009

The goals and purposes of this breed standard include: to furnish guidelines for breeders who wish to maintain the quality of their breed and to improve it; to advance this breed to a state of similarity throughout the world; and to act as a guide for judges.

Breeders and judges have the responsibility to avoid any conditions or exaggerations that are detrimental to the health, welfare, essence and soundness of this breed, and must take the responsibility to see that these are not perpetuated.

Any departure from the following should be considered a fault, and the seriousness with which the fault should be regarded should be in exact proportion to its degree and its effect upon the health and welfare of the dog and on the dog's ability to perform its traditional work.

HISTORY

A French pointing breed that was created around 1830 by crossing an English Pointer with a Continental Pointer. The breed was in great vogue until the beginning of the 20th Century; being the most shown pointing breed in the first French dog shows.

The Braque Saint Germain was recognized by the United Kennel Club in 2006.

GENERAL APPEARANCE

A medium sized fawn and white pointing breed with relatively heavy bone and strong musculature.

CHARACTERISTICS

Sociable and easy to train, the Braque Saint Germain is an excellent hunter, with a soft mouth.
