The goals and purposes of this breed standard include: to furnish guidelines for breeders who wish to maintain the quality of their breed and to improve it; to advance this breed to a state of similarity throughout the world; and to act as a guide for judges.

Breeders and judges have the responsibility to avoid any conditions or exaggerations that are detrimental to the health, welfare, essence and soundness of this breed, and must take the responsibility to see that these are not perpetuated.

Any departure from the following should be considered a fault, and the seriousness with which the fault should be regarded should be in exact proportion to its degree and its effect upon the health and welfare of the dog and on the dog's ability to perform its traditional work.

HISTORY

The Braque d' Auvergne, or "Auvergne Pointer", was developed in France by hunters who wanted a strong dog that could hunt tirelessly. It is a breed of ancient origins, known for two centuries in the Cantal region.

The Braque d' Auvergne was recognized by the United Kennel Club in 2006.

GENERAL APPEARANCE

A sturdy, robust, short-coated, black and white pointing dog of medium size, with distinctive Braque characteristics, his appearance suggests the capacity to work all day, covering a great deal of ground with supple action.

CHARACTERISTICS

Kind, intelligent and tractable, the Braque d' Auvergne has natural hunting instincts and a keen sense of smell. He is also well suited to family life.

HEAD

The head is long, in proportion to the size of the dog, and characteristically somewhat lighter in females than in males. The stop is moderate but defined. In profile, the lines of the skull and the muzzle are slightly divergent.

SKULL - Viewed from above, the skull is oval in shape. The occiput is only moderately defined. The width of the skull between the zygomatic arches is equal to its length.

MUZZLE - Same length as the skull, with a straight nasal bone. Upper lips overlap the lower, forming a square end to the muzzle.

Serious Faults: Parallel head planes, concave or convex muzzle, pointed muzzle. Over-developed lips.

TEETH - A full complement of strong teeth meet in a scissors or level bite.

EYES - Fairly large and set rather deeply, oval in shape and dark hazel in color, which creates a kind expression. Third eyelid is fully pigmented, as are eye rims. Whites of eyes are not apparent.

NOSE - Large and broad with well opened nostrils. Black and shiny. Set on as an extension of the muzzle, slightly protruding.

EARS - Set low and well back on skull. Rounded at the tip, with a slight inward fold. Leather should reach to the nose but not beyond.

Serious Faults: High set, short or corkscrew ears.

NECK

Long and slightly arched, approximately the same length as the head. Slight dewlap.

FOREQUARTERS

Shoulders strong and well muscled, with the shoulder blade sloping at a 45-degree angle to permit free movement.

FORELEGS - Long, muscular and straight with elbows held close to the body. Distance from elbow to ground equals distance from top of withers to elbow. Pastern is short and slightly sloping.

BODY

Square in proportion, measured from breastbone to buttocks and withers to ground. Chest deep rather than wide, with oval shaped ribs. Withers high, back short, straight and not wide. Loin short and wide, especially in females. Croup slopes gently to set on of tail. Flanks are wide and only slightly hollowed with moderate tuck-up.

HINDQUARTERS

Well angulated to match forequarters.

HIND LEGS - Strongly muscled. Hock joint lean and well defined. Rear pastern short and strong.

FEET

Oval in shape with deep, hard pads and tightly knit toes. Both front and rear feet point straight ahead.

TAIL

Strong at the base, set on rather high and carried horizontally. If docked, it should be 6 to 8 inches in length. If natural, it should reach to the hock joint but not further.

The docking of tails and cropping of ears in America is legal and remains a personal choice. However, as an international registry, the United Kennel Club, Inc. is aware that the practices of cropping and docking have been forbidden in some countries. In light of these developments, the United Kennel Club feels that no dog in any UKC event, including conformation, shall be penalized for a full tail or natural ears.
